

More protection for frontliners

KUCHING: Frontliners in the city are benefitting from the participation of non-government organisations (NGOs) and the private sector through their donation of protection equipment.

Bandar Kuching MP Dr Kelvin Yii, who called for the participation of the parties last week to better protect the frontliners, thanked the sponsors for their generosity.

“Today (April 24), a team from Journal Life Assurance (JLA) agency under Prudential, has generously donated three-ply surgical face masks and hand sanitisers,” he said.

Among the recipients were Hope Place, National Kidney Foundation Dialysis Centre, Kompleks Belia & Sukan (KBS) screening centre and the police.

“We are very grateful for all their sacrifices and contributions and also for the generosity of the sponsors.

“I believe in private sector partnership and involvement especially during these times. We all have an important part to play as we take care of one another,” he said.

DR Yii (left) accompanies the sponsors to distribute the face masks and hand sanitisers to the staff of a dialysis centre.